

MATTHEW CESCA

SCI-FI & FANTASY AUTHOR

WWW.MATTCESCA.COM

Originally from a small New England town shrouded in mystery, Matthew Cesca currently resides in the unforgiving deserts of Arizona. He has a teenage son and is surrounded by an assortment of cats.

Matt is a fantasy, science fiction, and horror author with multiple published works and just as many works in progress. He asks that you not get too attached to any of his characters. It rarely ends well for anyone involved.

THE MIRANDA PROJECT

All roads lead back to his past...

For the last five years, Alex has been on the run. Once a living weapon for a shadowy government organization, Alex is now hiding out on Mars trying to start a new life. But the shadows of his past creep around every corner. Every night, his broken mind forces him to relive the horrors he has committed.

Alex isn't like most people: he's a Psych. Born with rare psionic powers, each Psych is a prized asset for the Centralized World Government back on Earth. Psyches like Alex are tracked down by the Agency and trained to do the jobs the CWG doesn't want the public to know about.

With Mars no longer safe, Alex is forced to run once more. Refuge won't come easy—he's running out of places to hide. And for the first time since taking his life back into his own hands, he's not running alone...

AVAILABLE IN EBOOK AND PAPERBACK

